Foresters Foiled in Attack Upon Quick-Thinking Lawyers

By DON OLIVER

A daring early evening raid on the law school building by a band of whooping and howling Comanche Indians, cleverly disguised forestry students, was foiled Wednesday evening by a group of quick thinking lawyers.

At approximately 8:30 p.m. an observant law student noticed the group as he was taking his nightly one-minute cigarette break. After a closer look he saw they were painting a mystic symbol, later reported to be a pine tree, upon the walk leading to the law building. By this time the rest of the lawyers in the building had noticed the group, and plans were being formulated to dispel the marauders. A group of the more energetic students in the building grabbed a hose which was conveniently located in the basement and played a stream of water out a window upon the invaders.

Much to the dismay of the stalwart defenders, they were unable to hold out the incoming horde and in the fracas that ensued, the tables were turned and the lawyers received the brunt of the water.

At that point the invading Indians seemed to feel that they had the upper hand, for they retreated from the building and returned to their painting project.

The lawyers, however, had changed their strategy and were massing for another attack. They moved their main force to the second floor of the building where another hose was reposing in a state of non-use. A window was found, and once more water began to cascade down upon the once victorious painters. The pressure must have dampened the spirits of the howling band, for they broke ranks and fled the scene, leaving their painting unfinished.

It was rumored that the same band later painted the walk leading to Turner Hall in payment for atrocities by the residents of the hall against the tribe's god, Bertha.

Gosman Hits Dems At Bonner Rally

Lt. Gov. George Gosman attacked Arnold Olsen, Democratic candidate for governor, on the state oil leasing issue Wednesday night at a Young Republicans rally. Gosman said Olsen and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Mary M. Condon as members of the State Land board, had cost the state $20 million.

Leasing of state land for oil drilling had been as a standstill since 1954, said Gosman, when the present oil law was questioned by Olsen and brought before the Montana Supreme Court. Gosman said the oil companies will not bid on land for oil leases because the oil leasing law question is not settled.

Missoula county Republican candidates introduced themselves as did George A. Davis, Republican candidate for State Treasurer.

An estimated crowd of 100 attended the rally in the Bonner Gym.

THREE DIE IN IDAHO U FIRE

It was the fourth dormitory fire on the campus in one week. The fire broke out early this morning in the downstairs of a new, four-story men's dormitory. The concrete and brick structure had been called fireproof.

Most of the dormitory students escaped outside into the near-freezing weather.

J-School Host To MIEA Meet

Three hundred Montana high school journalists arrived today for the seventh annual meeting of the Montana Interscholastic Editorial Assn.

Students representing high school newspapers and yearbooks registered this morning in the journalism building. Also scheduled for the morning program is a general meeting in the University Theater and sectional meetings on news-editorial, advertising-production and yearbooks.

Prof. E. B. Dugan will deliver a talk to the delegates at 1:45 p.m. in the University Theater entitled, "This I Believe." Sectional meetings will finish out the day for the journalists.

Saturday morning the Editorial Assn. will continue its program with more sectional meetings at 9:30. The two-day meet will conclude at a general meeting in the journalism auditorium, with the election of new officers, awarding of the Gold Key to the outstanding high school publications adviser, and 1956 yearbook awards.

Speakers at the seventh annual convention are Dean N. B. Blumberg, Prof. O. J. Bue, Prof. E. B. Dugan, and Assoc. Prof. F. T. C. Yu of the journalism staff; Mrs. Lois E. Larson, Laurel; L. L. DeWitt, Colstrip; Donald A. Boslaugh, Eureka; Bill Kenney, Billings; and Mrs. Shirley Gaughan, Missoula.

Fifty prize photographs including the top winners in the eleventh annual National High School Photographic contest, will be exhibited in the Journalism building during the meet.

The association is composed of about 125 member schools, who send delegates to fall and spring meetings, and submit newspapers and yearbooks for annual evaluations. Each member receives monthly the High School Editor, a four-page newspaper published at MSU to help schools with their publications. Prof. Dugan is adviser to MIEA, which was started 36 years ago by A. L. Stone, founder and first dean of the School of Journalism.

Foster Elected Rifle Team Head

John Foster was elected president of the MSU varsity rifle team last Thursday and the team began organizing and practicing for mail-matches with various colleges throughout the nation.

Ralph Stockstad is vice-president and Dick Anderson is secretary-treasurer.

In the mail-matches last year, sponsored by the National Rifle Association, the MSU team was fourth in the nation. In matches sponsored by the Hearst newspaper syndicate, the team was third in the nation, according to Foster. Don Schessler, who was on last year's team, was selected by the NRA as all-American rifleman.

This year's team has prospects to be as good as last year's with about 40 men turning out to offer their skill. Under the guidance of M.Sgt. Richard Leonard of the Air Science department and M. Sgt. Milton Hansen of the Military Science department, the best of these will become the new varsity rifle team.

The team will have a busy schedule this year and together with entering the various mail-matches scheduled, it will also travel to several colleges to compete in person.

Meet Winless Brigham Young At 1:30 on Dornblaser Field

By RON MUNGER

The Montana Grizzlies and Brigham Young's Cougars renew their keen rivalry tomorrow afternoon on Dornblaser Field in a battle to stay out of the Skyline Conference cellar.

This will be the ninth meeting between the two clubs since they first met in 1941. In that game the Grizzlies clawed their way to a 20-7 victory. The next fall BYU won a tight ball game, 12-6, on a last minute pass play.

Because of the war the two ball clubs didn't meet again until 1948 when Brigham Young came from behind to whip the Silvertips 26-20.

In 1949 a very strong Grizzly eleven downed the Cougars 25-6. For the next three years it was all BYU with the 'Cats winning them by scores of 28-7, 27-13, and 19-17.

Adlai Says GOP Mistinterprets Remark; Ike Rejects Stevenson's Arms Proposal

By UNITED PRESS

President Eisenhower flatly rejected what he calls "Pie-in-the-Sky" proposals that the United States disarm unilaterally, in a Portland, Ore. speech last night.

The President's statement, made before a Republican rally, apparently refers to Adlai Stevenson's proposal about halting H-bomb.

Eisenhower said, "The choice is tests. between hard sense and experience versus pie-in-the-sky promises and wishful thinking." He said his administration will continue to work for a just peace, but any negotiations will have to be from "a position of strength."

Earlier yesterday the President told a Tacoma, Wash. audience that the Federal Government cannot be expected to solve all the nation's school needs.

The Federal Government cannot relieve the states or a community of its responsibility, but that it can and will help and lead, the President said.

By UNITED PRESS

Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson accused the Republicans of deliberately misinterpreting his proposal about ending the military draft in a speech at Youngstown, Ohio, last night.

Stevenson said that he has never called for an abrupt end of selective service or has he ever suggested any plan that would weaken the armed forces.

The need for the draft can be reduced materially through a broad program to make the services more attractive to young men looking for a career, Stevenson said.

The Democratic candidate said, "The point is simply that we need more and more today a type of military personnel, experienced and professional, which the present draft system does not give us."

He suggests that more trained men can be persuaded to make the armed forces a career by giving them special bonuses.

W. C. Kay, Bill Musler, and Ken Cummings, co-chairmen for the local U.N. anniversary observance, are shown discussing final plans. The meeting, scheduled for 8:15 Sunday night in the Music School auditorium, will feature speeches by students from several nations who will present their thoughts on the U. N. Religious speakers will offer prayers for the ultimate success of the organization.

Johnson Answers Charges Against Harriet Miller

Robert M. Johnson, president of the MSU Young Republicans club, Thursday came to the defense of Harriet Miller, Republican candidate for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, against an attack made earlier this week.

Horace Dwyer, Anaconda attorney and member of the Montana Board of Education, had questioned the integrity of public statements he said Miss Miller made. Miss Miller's "pious pronouncements about abiding by laws are a little hollow in light of her own activities," he said.

Miss Miller is on leave as MSU Associate Dean of Students.

Johnson said of Dwyer's statement: "It seems to be an attempt to lower the prestige and to diminish the accomplishments of a candidate who possesses a very high intelligence and great perception and administrative ability."

Dwyer said, "Her entire teaching experiences limited to three days allegedly teaching in the Helena schools. Since she is unqualified for certification as a teacher in any state, particularly Montana, for her to presume to accept employment as a substitute teacher was an illegal act."

Dwyer said her candidacy was characterized as "an insult to the teaching profession."

Johnson said, "Miss Miller has fully familiarized herself with the organization of the state school system and the great pressing issues of the day, as demonstrated by her personal yin the present campaign against the incumbent Democratic candidate."

Speaking Choir To Use Prophecy

When did Isaiah utter his prophecies of the coming of the Messiah? Perhaps the Dead Sea Scrolls will reveal the answer to this question, but "The Messianic Prophecies Fulfilled" will tell how the prophecies have been and will be fulfilled.

"The Messianic Prophecies Fulfilled," is a completely new arrangement of portions of the Old and New Testaments by Dr. Evelyn Seedorf for the Speaking Choir.

The Speaking Choir is a group of 50 voices who have put on various programs during previous school years. In the past the choir has been made up entirely of speech students, but this year non-speech students are invited to participate.

Rehearsals will begin on Tuesday, Oct. 16, at 4:00 p.m. in LA 204.

SPORTS-ATORIAL

By JIM BERRY

The victory flag would be a welcome sight over Dornblaser Field Saturday, and there's a good chance it may be there. BYU, with two conference losses and a tie may provide the Grizzlies with their first win. Should Montana, with three Skyline losses, add pass defense to the type of ball they played against Utah State last weekend, Brigham Young may wind up at the bottom of the League pile, after the game.

It was pass defense, or rather the lack of it, that broke Montana when the Aggies racked up 141 yards via passes last week. Air defense was understandably high on Coach Jerry Williams' agenda for practices the past week.

Prospects are bright with the return of co-captains Bill Kaiserman and Bob McGihon, tackle Ivory Jones, halfback Matt Gorsich, and guard Montana Bockman.

On the other end of the Skyline ladder, a real cowboy-Indian battle is shaping up as the Wyoming Cowboys prepare to host the Utah Redskins Saturday afternoon. Both squads are undefeated in Skyline play and the game may decide not only the conference leadership, but also the title. If past history is an indication, Wyoming is in for a rough time as they only have defeated Utah once on the Laramie field in 32 years of competition. Since 1900, Wyoming has won but five games from the Utes. Wyoming has no losses this year, while Utah lost a non-conference match, 13-7, to UCLA.

Bob Winters, Utah State's ace quarterback, tallied seven votes by sportswriters, according to the Mountain States Athletic Conference, for the outstanding back in Saturday's Homecoming game. Stan Renning, "Tip guard, got four and end Terry Hurley received two; Larry Sorensno, Utah tackle, got one, for line honors.

Montana State's Bobcats are grooming for this weekend's Homecoming when the undefeated 'Cats tangle with Idaho State College for the Rocky Mountain Conference lead. Coach Tony Storti calls the game the toughest loop game of all as the ISC Bengals have won the conference title in three of the four previous years under coach Babe Caccia. The 'Cats are also getting ready for basketball season as they began workouts Monday.

League Says ...

No Radios In Pro Helmets

The spacemen got the boot today from the National Football League, and almost everyone is happy.

Commissioner Bert Bell barred radio and electronic devices in helmets for the rest of the season. "No one screamed against it," said Bell, "but we play for the fans, radio, television and press. They did a lot of kidding about it, and we don't want them laughing."

Officials of the 12 National League clubs generally agreed with the new method of coaching from the bench.

The Chicago Bears said they "have been against it from the very start." The Pittsburgh Steelers said the devices "took the sport out of the game." The Chicago Cardinals said they were "willing to go along with the ban," though they felt the radio equipment was "a great help." The New York Giants were "very happy" with the commissioner's ruling and quickly offered "a very powerful radio receiver for sale."

But the sentiment wasn't entirely one-sided. The Detroit Lions said, "We've already paid to install wiring under the field, and now we've had to cancel orders for two amplifying units."

Mont. Area Speech May Get Mapped If Interest Aroused

An attempt will be made to stimulate interest in the Montana phase of the Linguistic Atlas during the Rocky Mountain Modern Language Association meeting this weekend, according to Dr. Vedder M. Gilbert, president of the association.

"The Linguistic Atlas is an attempt to determine the patterns of American English throughout the United States," Dr. Gilbert said.

"Old time residents of the country, the city, and young children are interviewed by the project's researchers," he continued, "to determine how they use and pronounce such domestic terms as dog, car, bird, etc."

Highly educated people are not interviewed because they travel to such an extent their pure language pattern is altered.

The first phase of the project, after the interviews are made, is a linguistic map. New England is the only sections of the country that has been drawn on map form thus far.

The Atlas project is under the supervision of Prof. A. H. Marckwardt of the University of Michigan English Department.

NSA Benefits Heard by C-B

Jim Pomroy, one of four program vice presidents of National Student Assn., explained the benefits and program of the organization to Central Board Wednesday night.

"The purpose of student government," said Pomroy, who graduated from Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., last June, "is to provide something that will interest each student in the co-curricular field. That activity should be meaningful and beneficial to the student; it should supplement the classroom work."

Central Board had asked NSA for information on joining and Pomroy was sent to MSU to answer questions and explain NSA's program. He has been associated with the group for several years, serving on committees and in various program areas.

The three major purposes of NSA, according to Pomroy, are to provide a national voice for American and foreign students, to act as a representative of student in American national affairs, and to provide services to member schools.

The NSA Student Affairs Committee deals with problems concerning the social, cultural and political welfare of students, such as college unions, parking, summer jobs and part-time jobs.

The Educational Affairs Committee provides seminars and projects which can be set up on the campus, and takes an interest in regional conferences and events in congress that concern students. The International Affairs Committee works to maintain international student relations through exchanges, summer tours and seminars.

NSA's dues are set up on a sliding scale, small schools paying less
